OUTLOOK

Our model is built on efficiency that lowers overhead and fosters close client partnerships to achieve effective results.

Imagine that you could create a firm of quality lawyers that's big enough to handle the most complex cases but nimble enough to handle something for your neighbor down the street. Over six years ago, we started Taylor English to do just that. Since then we've grown by listening to our clients and creating a practice with knowledgeable, experienced attorneys who directly engage and are in tune with every aspect of your needs.

Our attorneys aren't tied to a rigid hierarchy like you find in traditional firms. It's a model built on efficiency that lowers overhead and fosters close client partnerships to achieve effective results. Simply put, we are purpose-built for our clients.

Instead of expending our finances on law firm trappings, we put them to better use—bringing efficiency to the practice of law. It means our structure is more streamlined and our rates are more reasonable. With increased accountability and less waste, we’re able to pass that value on to the client.

“It’s designed to bring value to the client.”

George Gaskin, Attorney
Member of the Corporate
& Business Group

EFFICIENCY

“We approach our relationships with clients as partners, not just outside vendors.”

We are a group of seasoned attorneys that believes an environment that promotes teamwork drives big-picture thinking. Our fundamental model was conceived to create a one-to-one relationship with the client by creating a purpose-built team to directly address their needs. It’s an objective-based approach and not a one-size-fits-all model.

We work to make sure the client doesn’t consider us just a cost of doing business. We’re advisors and advocates who assist clients to get things done, not tell clients that we can’t. We always approach an engagement by first listening to what the client wants to achieve.

Member of the Litigation & Dispute Resolution, and Creditors’ Rights and Bankruptcy Groups

RESULTS

“We’re focused on results for our clients. There is no other measure.”

The attorneys at Taylor English bring a unique blend of skill, entrepreneurship and real-world experience to achieve results for clients large or small.

At Taylor English, every client, regardless of size, is treated with the same level of dedication and service. We’ve achieved just as many results for large, national clients as we have for small, local ones. It speaks to our collaborative approach to providing legal services and our commitment to being a business partner.

Our process of purpose-built teams enable us to appropriately staff both complex legal cases and small engagements. Whether the client needs one attorney or a team of thirty, the process is designed to do one thing—create value and deliver results for our clients.

Our Firm carries extensive experience from years of front-line work with top firms and leading businesses, including many who've served as in-house and general counsel. In addition, a number of our members have worked outside the practice of law, including start-ups and in the management of businesses.

Combining our diverse talents in an environment that promotes efficiency and eliminates big-firm trappings, Taylor English provides a full array of legal services via experienced attorneys at a fraction of the cost.
